TURNING COMMUNITY CARING INTO ACTION

October 1 is National Seniors Day — a day to recognize and celebrate the older adults who have helped build our families, our communities and our country.

Here in Candle Lake, that celebration has particular meaning. Approximately 65% of our permanent residents are over the age of 60, with about 475 residents over the age of 70.

Our seniors are neighbours, volunteers, caregivers, committee members, mentors, friends and community leaders. They bring experience, knowledge and countless hours of volunteer service to the organizations and activities that make Candle Lake the exceptional community it is today. As our population grows and we all get older, we also need to think about how Candle Lake can remain a great place to live through every stage of life. The spirit of people caring for each other is already deeply rooted in Candle Lake and is an important part of what makes our community strong.

We recognize the important role of Candle Lake's clubs, organizations and community groups, strengthened by the time, energy and commitment of our senior residents. Through their activities, friendships and willingness to quietly look out for one another, these groups already provide an important network of connection and support throughout our community. For the past several years, the Candle Lake Health Services Committee has been working to better understand and support what residents need to remain healthy, connected and independent in our community. That work has led to the development of Volunteers Supporting Aging in Place, supported by provincial and federal grants, and built around a simple idea: Sometimes a little help can make a very big difference.

We are pleased to report that the program is now moving from planning into action. Staff are in place, and soon our first trained community volunteers will be ready to step in and help. Initial services will focus on simple, practical needs that can help residents continue living confidently and independently at home.

We have also been working behind the scenes to build a program residents can trust. Volunteers will be screened, vetted and trained for the roles they undertake, with services supported and coordinated by our Community Volunteer Coordinator and our Community Connector.

Our goal is simple: Create a safe, organized and dependable way for neighbours to help neighbours of all ages. The caring that has always existed in Candle Lake is becoming an organized community support system.

On October 1, we celebrate our seniors — their contributions, their experience and the important place they hold in our community.

And throughout the year, we will continue working toward a Candle Lake where asking for a little help is easy, offering help is meaningful, and growing older doesn't mean having to do everything alone.

Because a community that is a great place to grow older is a great place to live at every age.

After School Programs

We welcomed back our students on September 9th for our first After School Program of the new school year. The theme was Terry Fox and his Marathon of Hope. We watched the new music video release by Bryan Adams titled “The Ballad of Terry Fox” and talked about how far Terry Fox ran and how long ago that was. Our activity that day was a search in the field for hidden colored markers representing the 13 provinces and territories of Canada. October’s themes will be focused on Thanksgiving and Halloween!

The Library would like to provide adult programming again this Fall. Last year we had presentations on Mushroom Foraging, Greenhouses and a Scam/Fraud presentation as well. Our busy summer season is over and this is a great time to provide our community with some fun and informative programming. Contact Patty at the Library with any ideas you have!

VOLUNTEERS NEEDED!

We need volunteers from our seniors in the community to attend our November 4 After School Program for Remembrance Day. They will come and have tea, goodies, and share stories and memories with the children while making a Remembrance Day Craft. Please contact Patty at the Library at 306.960.9776 if you are able to share that day.

Follow us on Facebook and feel free to contact the Library at (306) 960-9775 or canlake@wapitilibrary.ca if you have any questions.

Don't Get Tricked: Protecting Yourself from Senior Scams and Fraud summary by Sohail Saleem, Owner and CEO ComForCare Home Care Saskatchewan - 306-206-2242 · saskatchewan@comforcare.com. The following is a slightly modified version of the author's summary.

Scams can happen to anyone. Recognizing warning signs and checking with someone you trust can help protect your money and personal information. You always have time to pause before responding.

Common scams include:

- Phone scams and phishing: Fake bank or government calls, emails and delivery texts seek money or personal details.
- Grandparent scams: Someone poses as a loved one in trouble and urgently asks for money and secrecy.
- Lottery and prize scams: You are asked to pay a fee to receive a supposed prize. Never send money to claim a prize.
- Romance scams: An online contact builds trust, then asks for money.
- Tech support scams: A caller or pop-up claims your device has a problem and asks for payment or remote access.
- Artificial Intelligence (AI) fraud and deepfakes: Artificial intelligence can imitate familiar voices or create fake videos of public figures to make a scam seem real.

Warning signs that it is a scam

- Pressure to act immediately, threats, requests for secrecy, offers that seem too good to be true, and demands for gift cards, wire transfers or cryptocurrency are red flags.

How to protect yourself

- Pause and verify. Hang up and contact the person or organization using a number you already trust or search out the organization that the caller is purporting to represent and contact them directly; the company number rarely would match the number the caller is asking you to call.
- Caller ID, voices and videos can be faked.
- Agree on a family code word to help verify emergency calls.
- Protect your information. Do not share your SIN, banking details, PINs, passwords or security codes in response to unexpected requests.
- Avoid unexpected links and remote access requests. Ask someone you trust.
- Check with a family member, friend or caregiver before sending money. It is always okay to say, "Let me check with someone first." High pressure is a red flag that the call is a scam!

If you suspect fraud

- Stop contact with the individual.
- If you sent money or shared financial details, contact your bank immediately. Save messages and receipts.
- Tell someone you trust and report to local police and the Canadian Anti-Fraud Centre.

There is no need to feel embarrassed or face it alone.

Submitted By Sheryl Spence EMO

FALL HAS ARRIVED!

It is an ideal time to update your emergency plans and emergency kits, winterized your homes and vehicles before severe weather arrives. Here are a few ideas of how to prepare for the winter ahead.

HOME AND PROPERTY PREPARATION

- Clean gutters and roofs: Clear leaves and debris to prevent ice damming and water damage.
- Inspect heating systems: Have your furnace, fireplace, and chimney checked and serviced.
- Seal windows and doors: Replace old weather stripping to keep out cold drafts and retain heat during power outages.

EMERGENCY KITS AND SUPPLIES

- Test safety devices: Test all smoke alarms and carbon monoxide detectors, replacing batteries as needed.
- Prepare vehicle kits: Add cold-weather gear to your car, including a blanket, extra clothing, an ice scraper, a small shovel, and window washer fluid.
